

General notes.

1. UCOL 101.

We require new majors to take our version of UCOL 101, UCOL 101D, which is 3CH. You could either move that class over to disciplinary, or list UCOL 101D under “Foundation Studies” and change the hours there to 15. I will assume you take the latter course here.

Note: During this unsettled time for UCOL 101D, we aren’t requiring students who have already met the UCOL requirement to take our class. We only placing new freshmen in it. We’ll need to straighten out this anomaly once the university settles on a UCOL 101 model.

2. Humanities.

Any upper level FL course currently counts as an “advanced core curriculum course” in humanities, so in French and Spanish you can say “choose 1” under humanities, and change the hour total accordingly. German differs slightly (the one difference among our language areas), as both first year courses count.

3. First year FL courses.

We used to not count these, and as a matter of fact most language majors don’t start at the beginning. But I think it’s false advertising not to count them, and they are now counted in our catalog language.

4. Parity. Save for one wrinkle regarding humanities CC credits, the TEP language programs should be identical in German, French, and Spanish. But I spell out all changes individually here.

5. Major ‘electives’. I include language below spelling out the requirements that students take at least one writing course, one culture course, and one literature course. But you can presumably just abbreviate that on your sheet.

6. BS or BA? I take it you’re listing requirements for the BS in CoEHS. Those in CoLA barely differ. But CoLA Students will also need:

One additional course to meet the WAC requirement (some in language count).

Two additional courses to meet the international requirement.

French.

(I sometimes “show my work” in parentheses so you can double-check my math. I don’t repeat this for all languages once I’ve done it for French.)
