Exercise Science

The Exercise Science program prepares individuals to manage health and fitness programs in public, clinical, and corporate settings. It lays the groundwork for graduate study in physiology, motor behavior, and biomechanics, and has become the major of choice for students pursuing health profession careers such as medicine, physical therapy, and occupational therapy.
Physical Education

The Physical Education program Upon graduation, students are qualified to apply for an Illinois Professional Teaching Licensure, valid to teach in Illinois public and private schools, kindergarten through twelfth grade, promoting physical activity and health with children and youth. In keeping with the vision and mission of SIUC, the program is to not only prepare students to become excellent physical education teachers, but also valuable members of the school and local community.
